The number of Public and Private Vocational High School graduates in Bandung Raya area, who are absorbed and employed, is still below ideal at around 57%. While nationally, Vocational High School graduates who are able to enter employment are ideally 80% -85%. This fact shows that there are problems in the quality of graduates. It is thought to be related to the problems in organizational culture and partnerships. Based on the background, the research aims to examine the influence of organizational culture and partnerships on the quality of graduates of Vocational High Schools in Bandung Raya areas of West Java Province. The research method used is a survey method, namely verification. The unit of analysis in this research is the Public and Private Vocational High Schools located in Bandung Raya areas of West Java Province. The observation unit is the leader of public and private vocational high schools in Bandung Raya area of West Java Province. The number of research samples is 280 vocational high schools in 3 (three) City Regions of Bandung Raya, West Java Province. The sampling technique uses stratified random sampling with proportional allocation. The analytical tool used to test hypotheses is Structural Equation Modeling (SEM) through Lisrel software. The results show that simultaneously organizational culture and partnership affect the quality of graduates. Meanwhile, partially, an only organizational culture has a significant influence on the quality of graduates, and the effect of partnership is not significant. The result of this study gives an implication for the Vocational High Schools in Bandung Raya areas, about the importance of the development of organizational culture as a pillar to improve the quality of graduates, that supported by the partnership.
