Abstract

The short-term increase of debt and loans in the form of "the greenback" in telecommunications companies causes a decrease in the profits obtained by the company, so the complexity of problems within a company can cause the company to go bankrupt. The purpose of this study is to determine the level of Profitability from the Aspects of Liquidity and Solvency in Telecommunication Sub-Sector Service Companies listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange for the 2015-2019 period. The method used in this research is descriptive and verification methods. The population in this study consisted of 6
