Tata Letak Masjid

Mosques are laid out in accordance with Muslim prayer. They are generally organized around a courtyard, a reminder of the courtyard of Muhammad's house, which served as the first mosque. Muslims pray facing the holy city of Mecca, a direction known as the qibla. A mihrab, or prayer niche, indicates the qibla, and the main prayer hall stands on the qibla side. Worshipers, called to prayer by a crier from the minaret, may hear a sermon delivered from the mimbar near the mihrab. A mosque that has a vaulted hall, or eyvan on each side of its courtyard, as this mosque does, is known as a four-eyvan mosque. Microsoft® Encarta® 2009 [DVD].
